

CLUES WHY MORAL LAW POINTS TO A MORAL LAWGIVER

People may be good without God, but God gives us the basis for our moral values and duties.

If God does not exist, objective moral values and duties do not exist.

The basis of objective moral values and duties cannot be found in individuals, society, science, evolution or platitudes.

Individuals are not the basis of morality.

Some people are compelled to help others, like Mother Teresa. Other people are compelled to eat them, like Jeffery Dahmer!

Society is not the basis of morality.

Had Adolph Hitler won WWII, gassing Jews would still be wrong. The Allies were right in holding the Nazis to an objective standard of right and wrong above their society.

Science and other options are not the basis of morality.

Science tells us how to build the bomb, not if we should use it. Evolution is about promoting a creature's survival, not cultivating its goodness.

Platitudes are not the basis of morality.

Some say morality is about "human flourishing." But who decides what contributes to flourishing, as well as which course to take?

Objective moral values and duties do exist.

They spring from the character of God. He commands only what is consistent with His character. To Him, we all will give an account.

Put the clues together to make the case!

1) If God does not exist, objective moral values and duties do not exist. 2) Objective moral values and duties do exist. 3) Therefore, God exists.
